Ghitelman Joins William Raveis

Former Weston resident Doris Ghitelman has joined the William Raveis Real Estate office in Southport. Terry Russo, vice president sales, spoke enthusiastically about Ghitelman who brings 19 years of successful sales and marketing experience to the Raveis office. "Running your own business and doing it successfully as she has done is quite impressive. Her perseverance and unbridled energy makes her addition to our team especially welcome," said Russo, who added, when it comes to assisting sellers prepare their homes for the current market Ghitelman does her homework. She is an experienced photographer with an aesthetic eye that gives her clients that added dimension needed to achieve full value. Her knowledge of the community's resources is a big plus for folks moving into the area as well.

Her activities outside the workplace include being a volunteer mentor with inner-city children utilizing her fluency in Spanish. She holds a black belt in karate, is an award-winning baker and has a keen interest in gardening and international travel.

Ghitelman is especially proud of her work in local area nursing homes with her therapy-assisting dog, Cello. She has appeared on both local and national television with Cello but is quick to acknowledge that her four-legged companion is the star.

Doris and her husband Gil, a freelance writer, live in Greenfield Hill.
